<sup>1</sup> This data is taken from the FOIA productions by the City of Chicago dated March 27, 2012, May 2, 2012, and May 16, 2012. The production included the date that the law firm was first engaged in the case by the City. With the exception of one case where the engagement was listed as 2000, all dates of engagement were on or after August 31, 2003.

<sup>2</sup> Enumerated below as follows: hourly rate cases/flat fee cases. Fees and costs from non-police related cases have been excluded from the totals, with the exception of two civil rights cases brought against Chicago public school employees.

<sup>3</sup> All cases totaled in this category are cases where Andrew Hale was retained counsel, a few with the law firm of Rock, Fusco, with the vast majority being cases where Hale and Associates were the City retained lawyers.

<sup>4</sup> All cases listed in this category are cases where James Sotos was City retained counsel, some with the law firm of Hervas, Condon and Bersani, with the majority being cases where Sotos and Associates were the City retained lawyers.

<sup>5</sup> The main lawyers who worked on the totaled cases for Freeborn Peters were Richard Sykes, who later went to Daley, Mohan and Groble, and Richard Levy, who moved on to Johnson and Bell. The data received to date from the City does not include fees collected by Johnson and Bell and a number of other firms who also do police defense work for the City. We have sought the fees and costs paid to these law firms and will update this study upon receipt of the data.

<sup>6</sup> Kralovec, Gamboney and Bueke, while not law partners, all represented Jon Burge in Kitchen v. Burge, Tillman v. Burge, and Fauntleroy v. Burge until the City replaced them with Hale and Associates.
